Support for University and College Missions

Marshall University is a multi-campus public university providing innovative undergraduate and graduate education that contributes to the development of society and the individual. The University actively facilitates learning through the preservation, discovery, synthesis, and dissemination of knowledge.

— University Mission

Programs must state their Program Mission and specify how this mission supports both the University's Mission as well as any Mission that the College the Program is housed under happens to have.

College Mission

Consistent with the mission of Marshall University, the College of Health Professions (COHP) is committed to offering quality undergraduate and graduate nursing and health professions education. The focus of the College of Health Professions is upon being interactive with the community, including rural and underserved areas, and responding to contemporary and future needs of society, nursing, and the health professions. To accomplish this mission, the College of Health Professions: • ensures the integrity of the programs through maintenance of rigorous professional education standards and through the high expectation of student learning and performance; • encourages involvement of faculty in service to society and the profession; • supports the engagement of faculty in research and scholarly activities; • provides an environment that is sensitive to a culturally, racially, and ethnically diverse student body, faculty, and staff; and • maintains an environment that provides for academic freedom and shared governance.

Program Mission

Mission of Bachelors Program in Public Health is to provide: • Academic training through rigorous course work that spans through various disciplines of Public health • Provide enough practical experiences to enrich the knowledge base of students. • Encourage participation of students in international/global assignments to help them broaden their understanding of health issues around the world. • Prepare students to be successful Public Health professionals and pursue higher education in the area of health care.
