

Robert E. Fox Field Camp Scholarship

Summer - 2006

Application Deadline: FEBRUARY 13, 2006

The Marshall University Department of Geology is pleased to announce the availability of a full scholarship for a 6 week geology field camp in 2006. This scholarship is provided through the generosity of Robert Fox, who graduated from Marshall with a B.S. in Geology in 1952 and from the University of Illinois with an M.S. in Geology in 1953. Mr. Fox has had a long and distinguished career as a petroleum geologist. Most field camps run for 6 weeks and are for 6 hours of credit. Applicants may apply for camps that are from 4 to 8 weeks in length and 4 to 8 credit hours.

Applicants must be a junior or senior, full time, B.A. or B.S. Geology Major. Prior coursework must meet the prerequisites specified by the field camp and will usually include at least GLY 200 (or 110), 210L, 201, 211L, 313, 325, 421 or 423. In cases where two, strong candidates apply, the scholarship may be split so that both can attend field camp. The amount of the scholarship is $2500.

Selection of the successful candidate will be made by Geology Department faculty and will be based on 1) GPA in Geology, 2) overall GPA, 3) major (preference for BS over BA), 4) financial need, 5) academic and career objectives, and 6) whether candidates use the field camp to fulfill their capstone requirement.
