Distance Education Policy

Marshall University School of Nursing (SON) offers individuals the opportunity to participate in classroom instruction for specified nursing courses at the graduate and undergraduate level from multiple distant sites. While the SON strives to ensure that distance education meets the needs of students, it must be noted that technical difficulties do occur on occasion. In the instance where a specific class session is unable to be delivered to a distant site, course faculty will make every effort to make class content available to the distant site faculty/facilitator. Students, however, are ultimately responsible for the course content, and as with any missed class it is the student's responsibility to get the missed material. Should a student have any specific problem, these should be brought to the attention of the site faculty/facilitator and the on-campus faculty immediately. If students at any of the distant sites find that this method of instructional delivery is not meeting their educational needs, then the student(s) are welcome to attend classroom instruction on-campus at any time.
