Withdrawing from the University may result in a recalculation of your federal, state, and institutional financial aid awards. Withdrawing from the University may also affect your future financial aid eligibility for specific financial aid programs, although in some cases you have the right to appeal by published deadlines. To understand the financial aid implications of withdrawing, I certify that I have read and understand the following:

- The policy on the Treatment of Financial Aid due to Withdrawal, which is located at <http://www.marshall.edu/sfa/notificationdisbursement/#fndtn-efs-tabpane-1-5>.
- The policy on Satisfactory Academic Progress for Financial Aid, which is located at <http://www.marshall.edu/sfa/eligibility-costs/financial-aid-satisfactory-academic-progress/>
- If a WV PROMISE Scholarship recipient, the policy on the WV PROMISE Scholarship Renewal Requirements, which is located at https://secure.cfvv.com/Financial_Aid_Planning/Scholarships/Promise/Renewal_Requirements.aspx.
- The renewal requirements for Marshall University scholarships, WV Higher Education Grant, and other financial aid programs, which are detailed in my Awards located in my financial aid records in myMU or at www.marshall.edu/sfa.
- If a Federal Student Loan borrower, the loan will go into repayment after its grace period ends. Information regarding exit loan counseling, repayment options, loan forgiveness programs, etc., is available at www.studentloans.gov.
