Harlan Smith

Dr. Harlan Smith, retired Professor of Economics at the Lewis College of Business, has been awarded the title of Faculty Emeritus. Harlan has been a highly regarded professor at Marshall for 26 years. He received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the College in May 2018. During his tenure, he was the Head of the Finance & Economics Division for six years and the Director of Assurance of Learning for the college. Over the years, Harlan has received numerous teaching awards, including the Kermit McGinnis Distinguished Chair in the Lewis College of Business, and being a finalist for the Pickens-Queen Outstanding Teaching Award. He has also been recognized for his scholarship through the Distinguished Scholar Award, Summer Research Award, and the LCOB Outstanding Researcher of the Year Award. Harlan has served on many critical committees, and his contributions to the university and the LCOB will forever be recognized. The title of faculty emeritus is a significant honor, and comes with many entitlements including remaining on as a member of our college faculty and use of university facilities.

Please join me in congratulating Harlan Smith for his many years of service to the University, and his transition to Emeritus status.

Division Advisory Boards

The Lewis College of Business has a very strong Dean's Advisory Board of 27 highly successful and accomplished professionals. In addition to the LCOB Advisory Board, each of the four academic divisions of the Lewis College of Business has constituted its own Advisory Board. The purpose of these Advisory Boards is to provide the division with guidance in regard to undergraduate and graduate curricula, the skill sets needed by industry, and overall direction. At their meetings, members of the board will interact with both the students and faculty through formal briefings and informal gatherings. The Advisory Boards will be instrumental in assisting the divisions with their strategic plans, and obtaining named professorships, endowed undergraduate scholarships, graduate fellowships, and critically needed research software and databases. They will also have a major impact on the division's academic focus and curricula.

Members of the Division Advisory Boards are distributed between alumni and non-alumni, and WV-based industry and other industry from around the region. Some of our board members represent major recruiters of LCOB students. The following tables provide the names and affiliations of our Division Advisory Board members.
