HIMSS WV Chapter Scholarship Award

We are proud to announce that one of our own Master of Science in Health Informatics students, Tejaswi Chelikani, was selected as the recipient of the HIMSS West Virginia Chapter Education Series Scholarship for Spring 2025.

"This recognition is truly an honor, and I want to express my heartfelt thanks for your continuous support and guidance throughout my academic journey. I look forward to representing our program at the event and continuing to uphold the values of excellence and dedication that Dr. Alberto Coustasse-Hencke has instilled in us." - Tejaswi

Congratulations to Tejaswi, and congratulations to Dr. Coustasse-Hencke!

Staff Celebrate 10 Years of Service

Recently at the Staff Service Awards Luncheon, Assistant Director of Graduate Programs, Kelly Sowards, and Project Coordinator Brandi Waiters received their 10 Years of Service for their dedication to Marshall University. Congratulations to our excellent staff!

LCOB Staff Take on the Marshall Mile!

Our Programs Specialist Drew Stephenson, Business Manager Charlotte Boyce, and Assistant Director of Graduate Programs Kelly Sowards participated in the Marshall Mile last week alongside other Marshall University faculty, staff and students. The Marshall Mile kicks off Marshall University's Community Cares Week, a celebration of service and community spirit that begins tomorrow, May 20th.

Attention Entrepreneurs! gBETA at Marshall's iCenter Now Accepting Applications

Marshall University's Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurship (iCenter) has partnered with nationally ranked startup accelerator gener8tor to launch gBETA at Marshall's iCenter - a free, seven-week program designed to help both students and adult entrepreneurs who are involved with early-stage startups in West Virginia grow through mentorship, investor connections, and hands-on support.

This exciting opportunity is made possible thanks to the generous support of Huntington Bank. Applications are now open for the inaugural cohort, and we're seeking entrepreneurs from across the state to apply.
