Pedagogy Matters III:
Mind the Gap

Friday, November 7
1:30-2:30
Online via Teams

When: November 7, 2025 | 1:30-2:30

Where: Online via Teams

Info: Pedagogy Matters Page

Registration: Required

Ever had a student's face suddenly light up—not because they finally memorized something, but because they finally got it? In every field, there are a few concepts that don't just add to what students know—they flip the entire script. These are threshold concepts—those moments when the fog clears, and suddenly things make sense... Now they're not just reciting facts; they're seeing the bigger picture, making connections, and actually thinking like someone in the field. Join us for a workshop on helping students (and maybe ourselves) cross those thresholds with more grace and less frustration. We'll talk about liminality, tripping over concepts, stuck places, and teaching strategies for those moments when comprehension wobbles before it stabilizes.

Straight Talk about AI in the Classroom
The Impacts of Generative AI on Course Materials,
Pedagogy, and Assessment
Pop-Up Clinic

When: November 12, 2025 | 9:00-10:30

Where: Online via Teams

Info: CTL AI Pop-Up Clinics

Registration: Encouraged to receive a direct link

Generative AI creates powerful pedagogical possibilities - but also requires us to rethink our approach to assessment of learning. Come join a demo and lively discussion of (1) concrete ways to leverage AI to improve student learning and (2) emerging approaches to measuring student learning even when students have access to AI tools. This is the first of three clinics; follow the info link above to see them all.
