

“The thing I love about Marshall is that it’s just big enough. I like the fact that all my classes have no more than 30 people. It makes learning easier and allows students to ask more questions and get more involved,” said Nathan Redman of Mason, West Virginia.

Nathan chose to attend Marshall due to its proximity to home, having several friends on campus and because he has always been a fan of the Thundering Herd. He is a senior studying marketing with a minor in entrepreneurship. Upon graduation, he intends to begin a career in pharmaceutical sales. Nathan is looking forward to learning more about entrepreneurship, as he has always had an interest in business and has developed several plans. Nathan credits his professors as the best part of the marketing program.

“My favorite part of the program has been getting to know a couple of the professors on a personal level. They have helped me, not only in the classroom, but also with creating and starting my own business,” said Nathan, citing Dr. Ben Eng as his favorite faculty member. “When I decided to start my own business, Ben gave me a lot of advice and helped me out with things I couldn’t understand or figure out. He is always eager to help in any way he can, and is one of the best professors at Marshall.”

In addition to balancing a full course load, Nathan works two part-time jobs and works around 50 hours a week. He cites Drinko Library as his favorite place on campus because it is where he gets all of his work accomplished; as he says, living with four roommates is loud. Fall is his favorite season because it is fun in Huntington with football season and warm weather. He believes alumni should give back to continue helping Marshall prosper.

“The reason that alumni should give back is because the university is what helped them be able to do the things that they are doing today. With the help of alumni, the school is able to make improvements where they need them.”

Fun Facts

Name: Nathan Redman

Class of 2020

Hometown: Mason, West Virginia

Major: Marketing with a minor in entrepreneurship

Favorite color: Blue

Textbooks or eBooks: I prefer textbooks. eBooks are easier to have since you do not have to carry the book around, but I would still rather be able to have the book in front of me.

Favorite thing about Huntington: There is always something to do here. Coming from a hometown with a population of about 900, there wasn't a whole lot to do. Huntington keeps me busy.

Favorite spot off campus: Ritter Park. There are a lot of things to do outside and it is a nice place away from campus.
