

Like old houses?

Interested in the history of Charleston?

Want to explore historic homes and neighborhoods?

Enjoy learning new things?

. . . then you'll love our new Graduate Humanities summer seminar . . .

The Glenwood Estate

CULS 600

Taught by Dr. Robert Maslowski
Marshall University Graduate College

May 14 – June 25, 2007

T, Th, 6-9 p.m., Graduate College Administration Building 323

Class Description: This class will review the major historical, architectural and archeological data available for the Glenwood Estate and relate it to the historical development of Charleston and the Kanawha Valley. Glenwood was built by the Laidley's in 1852 and was subsequently owned by the Summers and Quarrier families, some of the most prominent families of Charleston. Glenwood reflects the transition from rural to urban life, slavery to servants and agriculture to industry in the Kanawha Valley as well as America. The class will review archival research using the Glenwood collections and will include several fieldtrips to archival repositories and historic homes and neighborhoods in the Charleston area.

More information can be found on the website of the Graduate Humanities Program

<http://www.marshall.edu/gsepd/humn/>

****

This course is part of the MU Graduate Humanities Program's "Glenwood Project," made possible with financial assistance from the West Virginia Humanities Council, a state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Any views, findings, conclusions or recommendations expressed in this course do not necessarily represent those of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

