

Marshall University Graduate College

Graduate Humanities Program

The Glenwood Project

A & S 600-131: Exhibits in/for Local Communities

Tuesday, 7:00 - 9:00 pm Room AC 205

Instructor: Mark Tobin Moore, MA, MFA

Course Description: This course will combine classroom and studio-focused instruction to explore the process of exhibit design. Students will construct an actual exhibit in collaboration with a local organization and learn how to situate this training within larger currents of museum studies.

HUMN 602-131: Historical Studies

Wednesday, 7:00 - 9:50 pm Room GC 323

Instructor: Billy Joe Peyton, PhD

Course Description: This core course acquaints students with problems of historical knowledge, changes in the interpretation of history, nature of and ethics of historical research, nature of historical forces, and methods and ethics of historical research.

Fall Semester, August 25 - December 16, 2008

Location: Marshall University Graduate College, South Charleston

Fall MUGC Humanities Courses offered:

- | | | | |
|-----------------|-----------------------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------|
| • A&S 600-131: | Exhibits in/for Local Communities | • HUMN 604-131: | Expository Writing for Research |
| • CULS 600-131: | Appalachian Material Culture | • HUMN 680-131: | Independent Research Symposium |
| • HIST 600-131: | Social Memory and Oral History | • LITS 600-131: | Studies in Chaucer |
| • HIST 602-131: | Historical Studies | | |